

Abstract Of The Disclosure

A shoe having a frame in combination with a midsole to provide stabilizing of the shoe and a user's foot during the gait cycle. The frame has a plurality of depressions which are closely fitted within seats formed in the sides of the midsole. The frame and depressions are assembled in sandwich fashion between the midsole and an insole that is mounted with an upper on the shoe.